Jhadol

About Us

Tha Jhalas came to Mewar in the 14th century when Mewar was facing Mugal onslaughts to destroy its freedom-the independence it had enjoyed for almost eight centuries. The then Maharana of Mewar, Rana Rayamalji, received the Jhala borthers with royal honours. This one act of hospitality was to bear the richest recurring fruit for the dynasty of Mewar. The blood of the Jhalas has soaked the battlefields for centuries and they have shared the honour and glory of protecting the motherland and its temples from the foreign invaders.

In the famous battle of Haldighati (21st June, 1576), history records that the legendary Jhala Chieftain, Jhala Maan of Jhadol, sacrificed himself for Maharana Pratap on the battlefield. This is a sacrifice that brought the jhadol family to the forefront of history in the annals of Mewar.

The late Rajrana Kuber sinhji was instrumental in contributing to the prosperity of the Jhadol region by donating the land needed to create a water body which is the Jhadol Lake as it is today.

About Jhadol

About 50 Kms from Udaipur, a beautifully scenic road among the rolling hills passes through verdant forests alive with birds and fauna. The air is fragrant with the sweet smelling Mahua trees and in the wet season, the gurgling of the numerous twinkling streams keep you company. Occasionally, freshly ploughed fields interspersed with Bhil tribal hamlets full of lively children will wave you on your way. And all too soon, this delightful journey culminates at Jhadol, the country seat of the Royal Jhala Rajranas.

Accommodation

Rustically dressed cottage suites with beautifully appointed modern amenities like western style bathrooms, a lake facing lounging balcony, and a family splash tub overlooking the lake.

An infinity pool lapping the lake waters fringed with velvet green lawns.
